Pope John Paul II High School is a Catholic high school in Upper Providence Township, Pennsylvania, near Royersford in Montgomery County within the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. Pope John Paul II High School opened in September, 2010, and it is the Philadelphia area's first new Catholic high school and school community in 43 years. The opening of our school is a tribute to the traditions of our six schools of legacy, and the Archdiocese's commitment to that legacy by providing an exceptional Catholic education for generations to come.

COMMUNITY

Royersford is a borough in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, 32 miles (51 km) northwest of Philadelphia, on the Schuylkill River, and a member of the Spring-Ford Area School District. The town drew its name from the location of a ford across the Schuylkill River, which happened to be adjacent to land owned by the Royer family. The population was 4,752 at the 2010 census.

FACILITIES

Traditional learning takes place in the classroom and, with 29 general classrooms, PJP offers ample space for students to gather and learn. Nowhere is our commitment to leading edge technology more apparent than PJP's five fully functional science labs that will give students the hands-on experiences necessary to prepare them for the complex challenges of college and beyond. The 1,200-seat auditorium, complete with theatrical staging and lighting, plays host to a variety of special events like concerts, plays, assemblies and school masses. The fitness center provides students with modern gym equipment to build and maintain a healthy lifestyle.
